

The Business of Broadway

For Kaitlin Hopkins, the new director of Texas State's musical theatre program, there's no business like show business. And that's what this acclaimed theatre and television actress wants to teach her students: More than helping students perfect performance skills, Texas State also teaches them the art of the call-back, the grace of the stage and the business of Broadway. It's just another reason the theatre stars are bright at Texas State ... and rising.
